With fun and discovery at every turn, Boy Scouts of America programs make the most of right now. But what’s more, they build positive character and provide young people a foundation they can stand on to embrace opportunity, make new discoveries, and overcome obstacles.

- The more time kids spend in Scouting, the better the outcomes in character development.
- Scouts are more likely to embrace positive social values than non-Scouts.
- When asked what was most important to them, Scouts were significantly more likely than non-Scouts to choose “helping others” or “doing the right thing” versus “being smart,” “being the best,” or “playing sports.”

RELIABLE RESOURCES  RELIABLE OUTCOMES  RELIABLE INSIGHTS  GENUINE CARE FOR PEOPLE
These young people devote themselves to self-improvement, community service, and God.

The mission of Boy Scouts of America is to prepare young people to make smart, ethical, and moral choices throughout their lifetime. Being a Scout is more than basic skills and teamwork, it is learning the value of service and leadership within a community. The Boy Scouts of America allow our youth to reach their fullest potential, grow in confidence, and take a true interest in how they can impact the community as they grow older. The Scout Oath states: “I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout Law; to help other people at all times.” These young people devote themselves to self-improvement, community service, and God.

Over the years, I’ve been lucky enough to be involved with the Boy Scouts on several levels. I have seen the impact the Boy Scouts of America can have on individuals, through the experiences of my two sons, who are both now Eagle Scouts. When I think of all the service projects they have been involved with during their Scouting years, I am proud to see the personal growth and satisfaction they have achieved. I have seen my sons grow to recognize their natural talents through learning the value of perseverance, motivation, and success. In my eyes, the Boy Scouts worked alongside me, as a parent, to further instill the character traits I wanted my sons to have. It works as a great partnership to help develop young boys into strong, great men. In our community, the Boy Scouts do tremendous work that aligns perfectly with our cornerstone at Gaylor Electric – Genuine Care for People. The Boy Scouts of America show a great deal of appreciation and dedication to serving their peers, community, and country. Through their mission and leadership, I believe our community is – and will continue to become, a better place.
Scouting is so important for a young person’s development. I remember my days many years ago with Troop 24 in East Lansing, MI. Some of the experiences I had in junior high and early high school with that troop are still etched in my memory. I think it’s had a huge impact.

Later in life and now in this chapter leading the city as mayor. To see the involvement of so many of our youth in Scouts. I wish there were a lot more because it’s a wonderful program, teaches great ideals, gets them involved in the community. It’s everything a mayor wants to see.

I can tell you what Scouts do in Westfield. They get so involved in the community. When we have such a desirable place as Westfield is, and we have so many families moving here. To build on that family atmosphere, Scouting just plays right into that with what it teaches and how it teaches to give back and get involved in the community. That involvement is an intangible that makes the city so desirable far beyond what government can do.

Andy Cook
Mayor of Westfield
Since 2008

One of the things that has pleased me most as mayor has been creating a vibrant city that is unique and welcoming to all, which has attracted families and businesses from around the world. I enjoy seeing the many ways that people are able to thrive in Carmel, even during the pandemic.

Scouting teaches our youth how to develop lifelong skills and it creates strong leaders who go on to serve their communities in a variety of ways. Some of the outdoor activities that may not seem to have relevance later in life actually help with creative thinking, problem solving and team building, all of which are needed throughout one’s life. Scouts also impact Carmel by completing service projects in our community.

James Brainard
Mayor of Carmel
Since 1996
I am most proud of the team we have built that has helped steer our city through a major global pandemic as well as difficult racial conversations. At the same time, we have not taken our foot off the gas when it comes to building a better future for our citizens. Our team has been transparent, forward-thinking and genuine in our concern for all these major issues facing our community.

From your perspective, how has Scouting impacted your city: Every strong community is built on the backs of many generations before. Scouting has played a key role in developing many of the civic, government and business leaders in our city. When I speak to a scouting troop, I see the next generation who is being prepared to take the reins of leadership. Key skills that can only be taught during scouting will help turn our young kids into well-rounded adults.

Chris Jensen
Mayor of Noblesville
Since 2020

Scott is most proud of making Fishers inviting to employers large and small which has resulted in new economic development records being set each year since he took office. In the last four years, there have been more than 4,900 new jobs created and $500 million in new private investment. From attracting corporate headquarters to fostering the development of homegrown companies started by entrepreneurs at Launch Fishers, the growth of good-paying jobs in Fishers is significant.

Critical to attracting jobs and families to Fishers are the amenities that make a community feel like home. Scott has led efforts to strengthen city services and quality of life amenities. Some highlights include park and trail improvements, the new downtown amphitheater, the creation of Agripark – the nation’s largest urban farm, the attraction of Ikea and Top Golf and the Yard at Fishers District culinary destination and Geist Waterfront Park.
